The Blue Electric Wind by Alice Hoffman

The Blue Electric Wind is a novel that follows the lives of four women from the 1960s to the present day. The women are from different backgrounds, but they are all connected by their experiences with the counterculture movement. The novel explores the ways in which the counterculture changed American society, and it also examines the challenges that women faced during this time period.

The Changing Room by Peggy Orenstein

The Free9 by Don Brown

The Free9 is a graphic novel that tells the story of the Little Rock Nine, a group of nine African American students who integrated Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas in 1957. The novel follows the students as they face discrimination and violence from white students and adults. The Free9 is a powerful story about the courage and determination of these nine students.

The Ceasefire Babies by Katherine Boo

The Ceasefire Babies is a non-fiction book that tells the story of a group of children who were born in Chicago during the height of the city's gun violence epidemic. The book follows the children as they grow up and face the challenges of poverty, violence, and racism. The Ceasefire Babies is a heartbreakingly true story, but it is also a story of hope and resilience.
