Lily and Rose are back in another exciting adventure in the Sisters in Time series! This time, they're traveling back to the Home Front during World War II.

It's 1943, and the war is raging in Europe. Lily and Rose's hometown is on the home front, but that doesn't mean they're safe. The war is having a big impact on their lives, and they're eager to do their part to help.

Lily and Rose join the war effort by volunteering at a local factory. They work long hours, but they're proud to be contributing to the war effort.

While they're working at the factory, Lily and Rose meet a group of other young women who are also doing their part to help the war effort. These women are from all walks of life, and they're all working together to support the troops and their families.

Lily and Rose learn a lot about teamwork and perseverance from these women. They also learn about the importance of family and friends during difficult times.

The Home Front in World War is a heartwarming and inspiring story about the importance of community and sacrifice during difficult times. It's a story that will resonate with readers of all ages.
